MATSON STEAMER TAKES A SMALL LIST OUT

Taking Paul Super away to the mainland to begin his Y. M. C. A. work for the international committee and also carrying back to San Francisco four principals of the stranded de Polco Opera Company, the Matson steamer Wilhelmina sailed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning for the mainland.

Passengers going out on her were 86 first-cabin and 28 steerage, a small list, due to many tourists desiring to stay over for the remainder of the Carnival. Freight going out was about 7400 tons and included 6000 of sugar, 500 of molasses, 25,000 cases of canned pine and considerable miscellaneous cargo.

The steamer sailed on time to the minute and took 133 bags of mail dispatched by the postoffice.

HAWAII WILL DERIVE GREAT BENEFIT FROM ARROWHEAD MAGAZINE

That the Hawaiian islands will derive great benefit from the proposed special number of the Arrowhead Magazine, published by the Salt Lake Route, is evidenced by the decision of the Union Pacific Railway System to make a special distribution of this large edition.

The Promotion Committee yesterday received a copy of a letter written to Douglas White, industrial agent of the Salt Lake Route at Los Angeles, from John P. Cummings, general advertising agent of the Union Pacific System at Chicago, in which Mr. Cummings states he will be glad to cooperate in making an effective distribution of any special edition of the Arrowhead Magazine devoted to Honolulu and the islands. He concludes as follows:

"Owing to the fact that European travel is cut off, undoubtedly tourists are greatly interested in Honolulu and the islands, and I believe a special edition of the Arrowhead Magazine containing information concerning Honolulu could be distributed to good advantage in the East."

The Arrowhead Magazine representatives, who have been here for a couple of weeks rounding up business and articles for the magazine, are hopeful that the Honolulu business community will back up this special number in a very substantial manner.

OFFICIAL BOUNDARIES OF OXFORD EXTENDED BEYOND OLD LIMITS

OXFORD, England.—The announcement that the official "boundaries" of Oxford University have been extended to include all the country within a radius of three and a half miles of "Carfax" alters one of the most venerable and binding regulations of the ancient university.

Hitherto "residence" at Oxford university, which is one of the requisites for a degree, has meant a house or lodgings within a radius of one and a half miles. This extension of the limit is a concession to the speeding up of locomotion in these modern days.

"Carfax," from which as a center the frontiers are measured, is the college term for the meeting place of High street and three other thoroughfares in the center of the city. The word is a corruption from the medieval Latin "quadri-furcus," or four forked.

Flying a pennant 700 feet long, one foot for each soldier aboard, the cruiser Saratoga arrived in Seattle for repairs.
